REVITY is the soul of wit. The more we become acquainted with a certain professor on the campus the more are we impressed with the validity of this statement. Although there is a realization that qualities exist in him too profound to be expressed by means of words, yet as a small expression of our appreciation for one who exhibits these qualities and who commands our admiration and respect by his personality and intellectual abilities, we, the class of 1930, dedicate the following pages of our history, the twenty-second volume of THE HACAWA

TC

EDWIN LAKE SETZLER, A.M.

As the students know him on the campus and elsewhere.

TOREWORD W

NOTHER eventful year in our lives has passed, and many times in the dim and distant future the veil which separates us from the past will be brushed aside, and the familiar scenes and faces recorded in memory during the past year will be reviewed.

Into this volume of THE HACAWA have gone our sincerest efforts to paint a graphic picture of the incidents of yesterday, the scenes of today, and the prophecies of tomorrow, and to reflect the true spirit of Lenoir Rhyne. May the Colonial theme depicted, centering around a sturdy young German trapper be a stimulus for each individual possessor of this book to cast into the mould of his or her future those qualities of character that feature the race that made our Alma Mater possible.

If when you peruse these pages in the tomorrow of life, the memories here mirrored serve to rekindle the spirit of our college days, awaken remembrances of our intermingled joys and sorrows, make glad your heart, lighten your burdens, inspire your life, then the builders of this volume will feel their efforts have not been in vain.

To those pictured above we owe much, in that they were our pilots through the complex phases of our Senior life.

The class of '30 has, among other things, been distinguished for its loyalty—a quality as intangible and indefinable as love. Through the dark days of the Freshman year when fire wrought its havoc, the class of '30 stood nobly by its Alma Mater, and in the years following was ever ready to lend a hand. May this loyalty keep burning in the heart of each classmate of '30, that when meeting each other at the intersection of life's pathways, we may feel that mighty emotion known only to those who have withstood the storm and stress of four years in college together.

EDITORS NOTE—Again this year our beloved Prof. Eugene De Forest Heald contributed much to enlighten the seniors in regard to traits of character as revealed by their handwriting, and as he otherwise knows them. Who knows what these few words may mean to us, and all we can say is simply—thank you, Dr. Heald.

Class Prophecy

The class prophecy was still unwritten, when one night I sat in the dark solitude of my room pondering over the hidden mysteries of the future. I seemed to be just outside a fast-closed door, vainly seeking for the key that would give me entrance. Suddenly I heard a voice behind me say, "Come with me and I shall disclose the future to you."

Why should I give heed to this strange voice, for surely no form could I see? But it seemed perfectly natural that I should obey this summons. Presently I was in a curious building, where now for the first time, I had a glimpse of my guide.

"I am." he explained, "the Spirit of Future Destinies. And here," he said, summoning one of his messengers to him, "is the Genii of your class's future destiny. He will be the key to your locked door."

I was conveyed into a small room and bade to be seated in front of a curious looking little instrument. "Now," said my companion. "look with me into this and behold what changes thirteen years can make in your classmates."

I looked and at first very indistinctly. Yes, I recognize her, do I not? Indeed, it is Sallie Arndt, tripping down the aisle of an exclusive ladies' shop, showing off the lovely lines of the latest creation. And there is 'Bunn' Efird, the manager of this same establishment talking over with Rebecca Crigler, the representative of a Parisian designer, the newest and most tasteful designs for the coming season.

Now appears the famous reader and soloist. Mildred Eargle, with her accompanist, Evelyn Ballentine. They seem to be making quite a hit with their songs and readings.

Lois Bolick has organized a girls' basketball team among the intermediates of her congregation, and is going great this season.

Frank Clapp and Joe Moretz are planning scaplane tours to the Orient in the improved Ford model.

Photos of Johnny Clemmer in his famous left-hand tennis stroke are monopolizing the sports pages of all the leading newspapers.

"Mary Jane" Cloninger is still making announcements. He is a favorite with radio fans. "Fat" Coulter, as a member of the Nevada legislative body, is planning an extensive road-

"Fat" Coulter, as a member of the Nevada legislative body, is planning an extensive roadbuilding program for that state.

Aurine Davis, a news reporter for a large daily, has just succeeded in being the first one to get the inside "dope" from Legislator Coulter in regard to his plan.

Claude Deal is cleaning house in Chicago's underworld. He has already made his ability as a lawyer felt.

Cloyd Hager is campaign manager for the Republican candidate for governor of North Carolina in the coming election.

"Monk" Mauney is an outstanding business man of North Carolina. His latest hobby is the establishment of a "cat" hospital.

Mabel Deal and Gladys Roof are in charge of this health institution for animals. They have recently demonstrated that the reading of German and French poetry has a wonderful soothing power over the inmates.

Radio static grated so upon Mark Little's sensitive nature that just for spite he has invented a static absorber.

Russell Huffman is at this time engaged in proving his point in an important question being discussed by the leading Lutheran ministers.

"Judge" Swicegood owns a beauty parlor. Yes, there he goes now, to have the waves set in his hair before the day's work begins.

Ruth Setzer is busy staging a new talkie production in which the heroine does all the talking.

The chain stores, having high ambitions, selected Jake Smyre as their head.

Ben Lentz is now trying to find a mathematical solution to his many problems.

Emily Sigmon is making good as a trained nurse.

Margie Barringer is working with the Child Welfare Bureau. She entertains a children's group three afternoons of every week.

Banks Ritchie is the "big man" in the present day athletic association.

Miriam Tuttle takes an active interest in organization work. She is president of the Woman's Temperance League in her state.

Grace Sain is applying the painless method of education in a mountain school of North Carolina.

Turner Phillips, having learned that many psychological experiments have been performed with white rats, is by this method trying to discover the cause and nature of love.

Bernice Mosteller is unearthing many interesting things in her historical research of western North Carolina.

Charles Hickman is president of the National Bank and Trust Company.

"Razz" Miller has recently challenged Will Rogers to a battle of wits.

Gibbes DeHihns, the speed demon in college athletics, is the speediest man on wheels. He has just broken the speed record in the annual races at Daytona Beach.

Violet Huffman is still interested in newspaper work, and saves her nickels for the news. Jack Kiser, after a strenuous college life, has finally settled down to a quiet home existence. His recreation he now gets on the golf links.

Roy Swicegood, a supersalesman, has succeeded in selling his "line."

Beryl Frye is in love yet, but still single.

Olin Sink is finding that being the dean of the college keeps him about as busy as the editorship of a college publication.

Carolyn Hentz is using her convincing power in arguments now that she is in the South Carolina House of Representatives.

Helen Smith is teaching music and helping to stimulate music appreciation.

Ruth Hudson is movie cashier of her own theatre. She says that she loves the work.

Varena McGalliard finds that her household duties occupy the greater part of her day.

Corrie Yoder is instructing her pupils in the difficult paths of knowledge.

"Bill" Plonk is kept busy answering the questions that pour into her desk from the readers of her column, "Advice to Young Lovers," which runs in the daily newspapers,

Gradually everything seemed to melt away and vanish before my eyes. Darkness—and then, I realized with a start, that I was back in my own room. Dreaming, did you say? Possibly so, but at last I had caught the vision.

Class Song

Colors of black and gold, waving in air.
They are the insignia of 'Thirty so fair.
What do they tell us, flying so high?
Their's is the story of days gone by:
Stars in the field of athletes so bold.
Whispering glories in letters of gold,
Scholars and speakers, in glad array,
Music and laughter that brighten the day.
Colors of 'Thirty bring dreams to me,
Colors of 'Thirty bring dreams back to me.

Our Alma Mater, we sing to thee.
Thou wert the mother of past days so free.
Our voices blend now, in melody,
Full of fair 'Thirty and gay memory.
Under the trees' green, free from life's care
Were those four years filled with joys so rare.
Now we must leave thee, time comes to part.
Tears in our eyes, fond mem'ries in heart.
Colors of 'Thirty bring dreams to me.
Colors of 'Thirty bring dreams back to me.

—EVELYN BALLENTINE.

Senior Class History

Perhaps there will never be four years that can quite compare with the past four which we have spent at Lenoir Rhyne. In the fall of 1926 we entered upon our first real experience of college life with 109 members, which at the time was one of the largest ever at Lenoir Rhyne. The adjective "green" might have been well applied, yet we had ideas of our own; however, they soon melted away in the presence of the wise Sophomores. We chose Mark Pasour to guide us through our troubles. After our efforts of nine months our class was reorganized in all phases of college life—particularly so in athletics. As Freshmen, our class won the championship in football, basketball and baseball.

In the fall of '27 we again assembled in the halls, but now we were called Sophomores, and had from our number a powerful leader. Wayne Detweiler. Step by step we climbed higher and higher in the realms of college life—again carrying all athletic banners.

When Glenn Cloninger was chosen to lead us we were called jolly Juniors. As we look back over this period of our college life we see laughter, joy and success.

In the fall of '29 the cloak of sophistication fell to our shoulders with Russell Huffman as our leader. We have made friends and formed associations which have molded our lives. We have developed a sense of comradeship through athletics, societies and other organizations on the campus, which will remain with us always. As we look back now we realize that our four years at Lenoir Rhyne have been happy as well as profitable. Now we give up the privileges and honors that have been ours to our followers. Thus we bid you farewell as we go into the world to prove our worth by living up to the ideals of our beloved Alma Mater.

History

Of a class I speak, who first from the shores of high school came down to Lenoir Rhyne and the strands of college culture there to anchor for four years to glean the wares of College Land. It was driven by the relentless urge of Learning and suffered much during semester examinations, until it became the Junior class of 1930, lacking only one year of reaching the top of Mount Parnassus.

Our crew first assembled on September 12, 1927, at a dinner in Highland Hall, where the President, Faculty, and old students welcomed us. When the old students arrived the "rats" donned the red and green caps. In every phase of college life we were well represented.

As sophomores we returned from three months of vacation and sowed our second crop. We reaped the harvest in its golden splendor at the end of the year.

We have planted the third crop and eagerly await the harvest, hoping to find it richer than ever before.

With sadness we think that the close of another year brings the appointed time for the embarkment of each in his own Ship of Life to sail alone on his voyage over the Sea of Life.

History

"Ignorance is bliss"—Then we were a blissful group who entered L. R. C. for the first time in September, 1928. As a class cannot stand divided, at the beginning of the second semester it was organized with Lee Shipton as president, and Rufus Rhyne as representative on the Faculty-Student Commission. Work was begun; and in the spring the news spread that the "red caps" had won class championship in baseball, and that the freshman girls had carried off the same honors in basketball. On Arbor Day red and white were substituted for the former "green looks" when we boldly carried our flag and placed it in our quadrangle. The same red and white had a prominent place on the four maypoles during the May Day celebrities. At the end of the year the "pupils of Ratdom" passed to the stage of college life known as "wise" sophomores.

Again the sophomores began their work, with Rufus Rhyne as leader. Then immediately began the work of starting the new "rats" on the first lap of their journey to Education. A reception finally ended hostilities. During the year the class contributed members to athletic and literary events. A second step has been made toward our goal. Now we see the sophomore year gradually pass, and look forward with eagerness to the future.

History

The day of days finally arrived for those eager and impatient boys and girls who had been for so long a time anxiously waiting to get a taste of college life. September 9, 1929, beheld an inroad of Freshmen to Lenoir Rhyne College who were desirous of showing what they could do in the new world that they were about to enter.

Friday, September 13, was a red letter day for the Freshman boys for a parade in nightly apparel in an event never to be forgotten. Images of "rat caps" will long linger in the minds of the boys of the class of '33, while the images of "shoe box parades and paper bag hats" will linger in the minds of the girls. All of these past "indignities" which we "rats" had to endure make us appreciative of that glory which lies ahead of us a few mouths hence the glory of being upper classmen.

On January 16, 1930, the class was formally organized and officers elected. The typical freshman was chosen at a meeting of the class on February 6, 1930.

Members of our class have played an important part in the athletic activities of the college, several receiving letters. With high hopes we look forward to them next year, for many of future players of our athletic teams promise to come from our "budding" class.

As we draw near the close of our Freshman year, we feel that we have accomplished our share in the making of a "Bigger and better Lenoir Rhyne." Furthermore, we feel that during those years that are yet to come we shall perform still greater deeds for our college.

History

Last September an array of boys and girls of different types and from many sections entered Lenoir Rhyne as Commercial students. It looked like a hopeless task to get organized, but with the able direction of our instructor, there was formed a class of students that immediately settled down to the task of getting a business education in one session. We did it.

With class socials, picnics, hikes, and the like, the year was a great success from a social standpoint, and we shall never forget these diversions from classroom work, which, while providing interesting recreation also helped us to do better our daily work.

The gratitude of the class is extended to our capable and respected instructor who gave his untiring efforts to our best interests.

Though it is our lot to spend but one year here, we shall always consider it to have been a privilege to attend Lenoir Rhyne even for that short time. It is with highest hopes for the success and advance of the College that we take our leave.

Tennis

During the past years Lenoir Rhyne has been represented by a strong Tennis team each year, and as the coming season approaches it seems that the team this year will be no exception. Although there will be only two letter men back this year, and these two are the best ever to represent Lenoir Rhyne, a strong team is very evident since the new men are very prospective candidates.

Captain Clemmer and Gibbes DeHibns, who won 22 out of their 26 matches last year, are the only two lettermen to report. Upon them rest much of the season's progress. However, they will be aided by a number of likely candidates, including such men as Creech, Shelby. Coble, Boland and others that may develop into real performers under the direction of Coach Setzler.

The Season is early yet and what records Lenoir Rhyne will make in Tennis cannot be determined, however, with the number of candidates now in training a strong team is assured. The schedule has not been announced yet and is quite a while until the opening match, and during this time Coach Setzler may develop an unusually strong team.

COACH E. L. SETZLER

Cheer Leaders

When "peppy" cheer leaders are to be had, L. R. C. produces them. A scene to be always remembered is that of "Mary Jane" Cloninger as head cheer leader, assisted by Emma Fritz, springing up before the "yelling mob" and starting the old "pep" song:

The finest school I ever knew, it never comes a poking,

If I would tell you the pep it had, you'd think I was a joking,

It's not the pep of the pepper box or the pep of the pop corn popper;

It's not the pep of the mustard jar or the pep of the vinegar stopper.

It's the old-fashioned p-e-p, the pep you cannot down,

It's Lenoir Rhyne pep, Lenoir Rhyne pep, the peppiest school around.

Next comes those old never-to-be-forgotten yells that bring every loyal L. R. follower to his feet:

L-E-N-O-I-R—Lenoir R-H-Y-N-E—Rhyne Yea! Lenoir Rhyne

Ray! rah!

Rah! rah! rah

Team! team! team

History

A bright spot in the history of Lenoir Rhyne College journalism was the chartering of the lota Chi Sigma, honorary journalistic fraternity. To make a long story short, the N. C. Alpha chapter was organized in the spring of 1929 with eleven charter members and two honorary members. Lamar Rhyne was the first president. A banquet in honor of the Senior members marked the close of the first year.

At the opening of school in the fall Gibbes DeHihns resigned as president, and Joe Moretz was elected to take his place. Under his leadership the fraternity successfully sponsored the first N. C. C. P. A. ever held at L. R. C. A room was secured in Oakview Hall and furnished as the home of the fraternity.

The predominant purpose of the lota Chi Sigma fraternity is to improve the various publications. It elects the staff members and promises membership to those who measure up to certain requirements. Three new pledges were made members after the second semester.

certain requirements. Three new pledges were made members after the second semester.

This chapter of the fraternity has been launched out upon its career in Lenoir Rhynel activities. It is hoped that it will become the nucleus of ever-increasing journalistic endeavors.

Since 1928 and 1929 the combining of the Lenoir Rhyne literary societies has resulted in one strong organization—the Demosthenian Literary Society, Judging from the decadence of so many literary societies in institutions, one would be justified in looking for a generation of youth among whom public speaking and ease on the stage was a lost art. Not so with the students of Lenoir Rhyne College.

The benefits from the weekly programs result in extemporaneous speaking, debate, oratory, and declamation. Many programs have consisted of one-act plays given by members of the Dramatic Department. Often special renditions of vocal and instrumental music add variety to the programs.

What of the College Annual?

Sometimes it is better to keep quiet; especially on things not agreeable and pleasant to the public. Yet justice demands retribution. For this reason it is deemed appropriate at this particular time and place to sincerely thank all those who have contributed toward the building of this volume. You may rest assured that you have done something toward which many will not lend a hand. Especially is the class of '30 to be commended for their most loyal support.

The movement to put the subscription price of the HACAWA on the students' bill was a big step toward remedying conditions. An examination of the annuals for the past few years proves to the reviewer that the law of averages is a tangible thing—there always being that twenty-five percent who are always found lacking when weighed for support. They tell us that because we have managed to get along without them in the past that the same can be true of the future. Yet we must not forget that general conditions change. Today the various merchant associations are beginning to treat annual advertisement with indifference when it comes to getting advertisements. It seems that in a few years advertisements in college annuals will be out of date. Under present conditions the staff has to exercise a tedious amount of care to make "ends meet." From these conclusions the underclassmen who want a part in the college annual of the future had better take warning and enlist the support of their classes, or else the book will evolute to a senior publication exclusively; written and financed by them, and on a smaller scale.

Editorial

It is often said that fact is stranger than fiction, yet we doubt if this is truer than our discovery that there is more romance in a newspaper than in all the story books. There is the thrill of dreamy idealism running a spirited race with the forces of realism. Trying to carry the arts of accuracy, truth and timely opinions through to a degree of perfection, yet ever in competition with the tireless hands of the clock, is a much more glamorous adventure than the leisurely work of the one with a lifetime to achieve the desired wrinkle or effect in his literary efforts. The literature of the news reporter is an appetizingly fresh product, which stales quickly, in competition with the canned goods that are reposing on the literary shelves for use through the ages.

The staff of the Lenoir Rhynean has attempted to gather up the vari-colored threads of college history as they are spun, and to weave them into a presentable pattern for posterity to gaze upon. The college journalists occupy a unique niche in the list of activities at Lenoir Rhyne. The good that honest workers do is encouraged, while the bad is discouraged by the dazzling searchlight of publicity.

When there are crucial moments on the campus the Lenotr Rhynean endeavors to take the most constructive editorial position, with a sincerity for "A Greater Lenoir Rhyne," expounded to mold the deciding public opinion of the students that way.

Not until the Utopian of perfection in collegiate journalism is achieved and then surpassed, will the editors be greater than that which they edit. With that thought we bequeath the recording organ of a great institution to our successors. As we have witnessed the passing of things and events to be held sacred in the vaults of memory, may you cherish the thought of living and writing the history of a greater Lenoir Rhyne that is surely to come.

Intercollegiate Forensic Activities

The forensic season of 1928-'29 was on the whole a very successful one. Altogether, the debating teams, newly developed, took part in eight debates, of which they won six. Lenoir Rhyne receiving the votes of nineteen judges to the opponents' five. The following schools were defeated: Carson-Newman College, Milligan College, High Point College, Guilford College, Elon College, and Furman University, while the college lost a contest by a two to one decision to Milligan College and also one by the same vote to Elon College. The debates with Elon College took place on April 11, and the single debate with Furman University on the following day. All the debates were on the question: 'Resolved, that a substitute for trial by jury should be adopted.'

Fairly extensive was also the oratorical program, the college taking part in four contests. In the State Oratorical Contest J. C. Kieffer won the second prize, while Mildred Eargle, coached jointly by Miss Pearl Setzer and Dr. Keiser, placed second in the first Women's Oratorical Contest ever held in the State. These contests are conducted by the North Carolina Intercollegiate Forensic Association, whose executive secretary and treasurer, Dr. Albert Keiser, head of the English department and forensic coach at Lenoir Rhyne, was instrumental in establishing this contest for the college women of the State.

For 1929-'30 Lenoir Rhyne will be represented by Frederick Moretz, in the State Oratorical Contest to be held April 4, at Guilford College, and by Evelyn Ballentine in the Women's Oratorical Contest, April 11, at Catawba College. Miss Pearl Setzer is to coach the woman representative.

The debating program for 1929-'30 is an extensive one. For the men seven debates have been arranged, a triangular with Guilford and High Point Colleges, a dual with Elon College, also a dual with Milligan College, Tenn., and a single with Furman University, Greenville, S. C. Of the four debaters of last year only one returned, so that new material had to be developed. Lee Shipton and W. F. Preslar (J. C. Kieffer took part in the first debate) are upholding the affirmative and Olin Sink and Russell Huffman the negative.

For the first time in the history of the college, girls' debating is materializing. A dual debate with Appalachian State Teachers' College, at Boone, has been scheduled, as also a single debate with Furman University. Helen Norman and Harriet Teufel, with Mary Marshburn as alternates, are upholding the affirmative, while Aurine Davis and Carolyn Hentz are on the negative. The question for the debates, as also in the case of the men's teams, is: "Resolved, that the nations should adopt a plan of complete disarmament, excepting such forces as are needed for police purposes."

Work in oratory and debate at Lenoir Rhyne College is receiving national recognition, for her orators and debaters are admitted to membership in Pi Kappa Delta, the largest forensic honor society in America. As in the past, selection is by merit through competitive try-outs and preliminary oratorical contests. The forensic coach firmly holds that all forensic activities should be built upon a broad foundation and lead to the genuine development of those who take part. No shams are tolerated. Hard work and thorough preparation are considered the cornerstones of success; a spirit of absolute fairness and honorable conduct is of incomparable greater importance than the mere winning of decisions.

HELEN MILLER, MISS PEARL SETZER, EMMA FRITZ, NELL HAGAMAN, FRANK CLAPP.

Lenoir Rhyne Playmakers

It has been four years since Miss Pearl Setzer came to Lenoir Rhyne as head of the Department of Dramatics and director of the Playmakers on the local campus. The life of the organization has been threatened with various trials, but in surviving it has proved that it is growing stronger with the passing of the years.

In the classroom of dramatics, Miss Setzer always discusses with her group that which is most prominent on the horizon of the world of the stage. The methods of the latest playwrights are studied and the standard plays of recent years are reviewed. Although acting, lighting, make-up and stage management have a big part in the classroom, playwriting is the chief subject. Budding authors present their prospective plots and they are constructively criticized by the instructor and the class, and later the play is presented in its tentative form for further criticism and development.

Each year the best plays are selected for production. Even after the piece is in rehearsal, it is frequently reconstructed for improvement. In this dramatic experimentation comes the real Playmaking of the class.

Last spring at the State Dramatic Tournament, "Red Hills or Cotton Mills," by Barbara Setzer, which was presented at Chapel Hill, was the winner of the trophy. Barbara Setzer also won the make-up contest, while Joe Moretz was best in the poster contest.

In looking over the work of the past year we see presentations of various kinds. There is a long comedy, followed by a program of short plays, a religious pageant, and a Shakespearian comedy, early spring the original plays of the class come in for production.

Many hearts were made glad by "A Tailor-Made Man," a four-act comedy by Harry James Smith, presented on the evening of June 4 before the annual commencement audience at the college. Joe Moretz got a big hand when he made a distinct hit as John Paul Bart, while the entire cast of thirty were not far behind in their individual performances.

In the middle of the summer, on July 11, four of the best original one-act plays written during the life of the Playmakers, were presented again. The program included "The Seventh Wave," the unforgetable tragedy of the North Carolina coast by Lucy Gaylord; "Politics Pays," the mountain comedy that Theodocia Watson gave us; "Red Hills or Cotton Mills," the prize tragedy by Barbara Setzer; and that great little village comedy, "Joe Rodgers Orders a Wife," that Pauline Katriker wrote last winter.

On the first night in November, "Much Ado About Nothing" was made to live again on the stage of the City Auditorium. The performances of all members of the east were so perfect that the whole Shakespearian drama was unfolded in less than two hours. The acting, stage management and costumes were up to the usual high standard of the Lenoir Rhyne Playmakers in a costume production.

Because of the great crowds, two performances of "Whither O Wise Man" were given at St. Andrews Church on the evening of December 15. This was an original Christmas pageant written by the entire Playmaking class. The staging was superh and the seasonal theme well illustrated.

During March the four newest one-act plays were produced, which added more laurels to the crown of Lenoir Rhyne's dramatic organization. The program consisted of "Catfish," a hilarious comedy by Frank Clapp; "Rising Waters," a stark tragedy by Helen Miller; "Callin' Preachers," a comedy from life by Nell Hagaman; and "Clouds," a fantastic comedy by Emma Fritz.

Other plays offered for production in the annual playreading on January 28 were, "My City," by Erskine Dysart; "Blue Blood Tested," by Frederick Moretz; "Bills and More Bills," by Evelyn Aderholdt; and "Starvin," by Leona Wyant.

"The Seventh Wave," by Lncy Gaylord, was presented at the Carolina Playmakers Theatre on the campus of the University of North Carolina, the guest performance coming on Thursday evening, April 10.

Executive Committee of the Religious Organizations

The officers of the religious organizations on the campus function as the Executive Committee for the supervision of the religious activities of the students. Prof. Hackeman serves this committee in the capacity of faculty advisor.

The Executive Committee began its work in 1928 under the guidance of Prof. Hackeman. He it is who has been its inspiration. To discuss and attempt solutions of different problems of a spiritual nature and raise the standards of moral life on the campus has been, and is, the chief motive for the existence of the committee. Under its supervision, there was held in the fall of 1928, a very successful meeting of the Lutheran Students Association at Lenoir Rhyne College. During the year 1928-1929 the committee held bi-monthly meetings under the leadership of Miss Ena Kate Lutz, as president for the first semester, and Miss Sara Aull, for the second.

During the year 1929-1930 this committee has been holding meetings as often as seem necessary by the president. The outstanding event of the year was the meeting of the Lutheran Students Association at M. P. C. I., to which meeting several representatives of the religious organizations on the campus attended. The committee still conducts special weeks of chapel exercises. And too, the Diakonians have been recognized for the special benefit of those contemplating entering the ministry.

In such a manner the Executive Committee has hoped to justify its existence—as an organization for finding the type of work most interesting to each student on the campus, and which will help him or her to reproduce in minature what is wished to do in the future—all for the glory of God.

The Diakonian club, which until last spring was composed of students who contemplate the ministry and other forms of church work as their life's profession, has been grouped into an organization exclusively for ministerial students. The purpose is to create closer relationship among the young men with these ambitions.

The club meets every third Monday in the month, at which time questions concerning the church, and church duties, are discussed in open forum.

The club does not altogether neglect the social side of their life, and many delightful social functions occur during the year as a result of their efforts.

The College Luther League is a member of the State League, and participates in all its goals and activities. Meetings are held every Sunday night with interesting programs furnished by the various members, and all the work of the local league is entirely directed and controlled by the students.

At frequent intervals entertainments, weiner roasts, and "fun nights" are given by the League for the enjoyment of all the students on the campus. It is, therefore, a religious and social organization combined, and popular on the campus.

Each fall, at the beginning of the school term, the boarding students organize themselves into groups for the carrying on of Sunday school work. The girls of the sophomore, junior and senior classes have organized into a group with Mrs. S. J. Marion as teacher. Many of the members go out to various churches to help in the Sunday school work while others remain on the campus. The work of the class is to study the Sunday school lesson together each week.

The Coilege Men's Bible Class is an organization for all the boys residing in the dormitories and others who wish to join with them. The Sunday School hour is utilized for a comprehensive study of the Bible lesson and truths for that Sunday. Under the supervision and instruction of Prof. Hackeman, it has been a tremendous influence in the moulding of Christian character among the men students. A genuine Christian fellowship prevails at all times among the group.

On many occasions the class participates in social activities, making life enjoyable and pleasant.

At the beginning of the year 1929-1930 the Diakonian Club and Christian Service Crusaders merged. The present name was then adopted. A faculty member or minister discusses the lesson at the Tuesday evening meetings for the coming Sunday.

The chief work for the year was to aid the pastors of the nearby congregations by helping with Euther League work and teaching in the Sunday school.

Glee Clubs

The College Glee Clubs play no small part in the college life here at Lenoir Rhyne. In past years the rehearsals have been held after supper. This season Professor Smith inaugurated the afternoon rehearsal, the clubs now rehearsing at 4:15 P. M. This has been productive of far better results. The Women's Club meets every Monday afternoon, and the Men's Club every Tuesday afternoon. There are joint rehearsals at the call of the Director.

The Women's Club this year numbers some forty voices. The Men's Club numbers eleven. The first concert tour was made in November when the combined clubs sang at St. John's Lutheran Church, Salisbury, and in the Junior High School Auditorium at High Point, afterwards, broadcasting the entire program over Radio Station WRNC. The next appearance of the combined Glee Clubs was in the First Presbyterian Church, Statesville, on Sunday evening, March 9th, at 7:30 P. M. Here the clubs gave an entirely sacred concert, ably assisted by Mr. Preston W. Hartmann, noted Philadelphia baritone soloist, and Miss Sara Aull and Mr. Frederick Moehlmann, organ pupils of Professor Smith.

The annual spring tour will take place before May 1.

The College Government at Lenoir Rhyne College has been established after years of experience and much study and consideration of faculty members and students. It is the product of the best thought of our leaders, and comparison with the efforts of the other institutions help to assure us of the acceptability of our own standards and brings us satisfaction in the principles and methods which we have set up.

In our government there is participation by both faculty and students and since the establishment of the present system there has been almost unanimous agreement by all participants in judgments and conclusions. Mutual respect, a closer fellowship, and a greater college loyalty has resulted in the deliberations and activities incident to the carrying out of the provisions of our College Government.

The Student Cabinet represents the first governing body of the students of Lenoir Rhyne College. Viewed in its true aspect, it represents a court of twelve members chosen by vote of the student body, and representing classes according to rank. It functions as the chief legislative body and a democratic court of justice for the students. Functioning thus, their aim is: "A Greater Lenoir Rhyne" through the promotion of higher standards of conduct; the insurance of justice, and the protection of the personal liberties of all.

Governments build the nations of the world. They make their heritage their glory, their triumph and their power. So does this phase of college government lend its part to the advancement of its beloved Alma Mater in the establishment of her good name and fame among the colleges and schools of the Southland. Out of the bonds of prejudice and bias we live and strive for her that has lived for us.

The H. H. B. Club is an organization composed of eight Senior girls of Mauney Hall. The club was formerly known as the Alpha Kappa Sigma: however, the name was changed last year to H. H. B.'s.

This group has been active for many years. Its objective is merely a social one; to have good times. This aim results in various picnics, parties and frivolities during the school term.

Numerous attempts have been made by the other members of the student body to discover the hidden meaning concealed in these three letters—H. H. B. However, the many endeavors have been in vain, and the name still remains a mystery.

The German Club is an organization for the students who wish to become better acquainted with the life and customs of the German people. The programs are outlined with the attempt to promote an interest in German outside the classroom, as well as in the cause itself. Lectures, music, and the study of important authors help to realize its goal. The regular monthly meetings are given entirely in German. Social life is also developed.

Professor H. O. Anderson, head of the modern language department, figured highly in the organization, and now serves the members of the club in the capacity of faculty advisor.

The French Club is only two years old, yet it is one of the most active organization on the campus. Early in the fall of 1928 some of the French students, sponsored by Professor Anderson, head of the department of modern languages, organized the club.

The purpose of the club is to interest the students in the French language, literature and customs. Attractive programs are planned for the monthly meetings. The requirement for membership is one year of college French or two of high school French.

The Young Women's Christian Association of Lenoir Rhyne College recently came into existence because the girls recognized a need of an organization exclusively theirs, through which they can strive for a well-rounded development.

It aims to promote the spirit of Christian fellowship among the girls on the campus and to meet the needs of the individual girl as well as of the student body as a whole. It purposes to plan and carry out its activities as is directed by its aim.
